Keep the thought.
Not just the tab.

Save a passage, add your perspective, and come back to it when it matters.

01 · Capture from any page

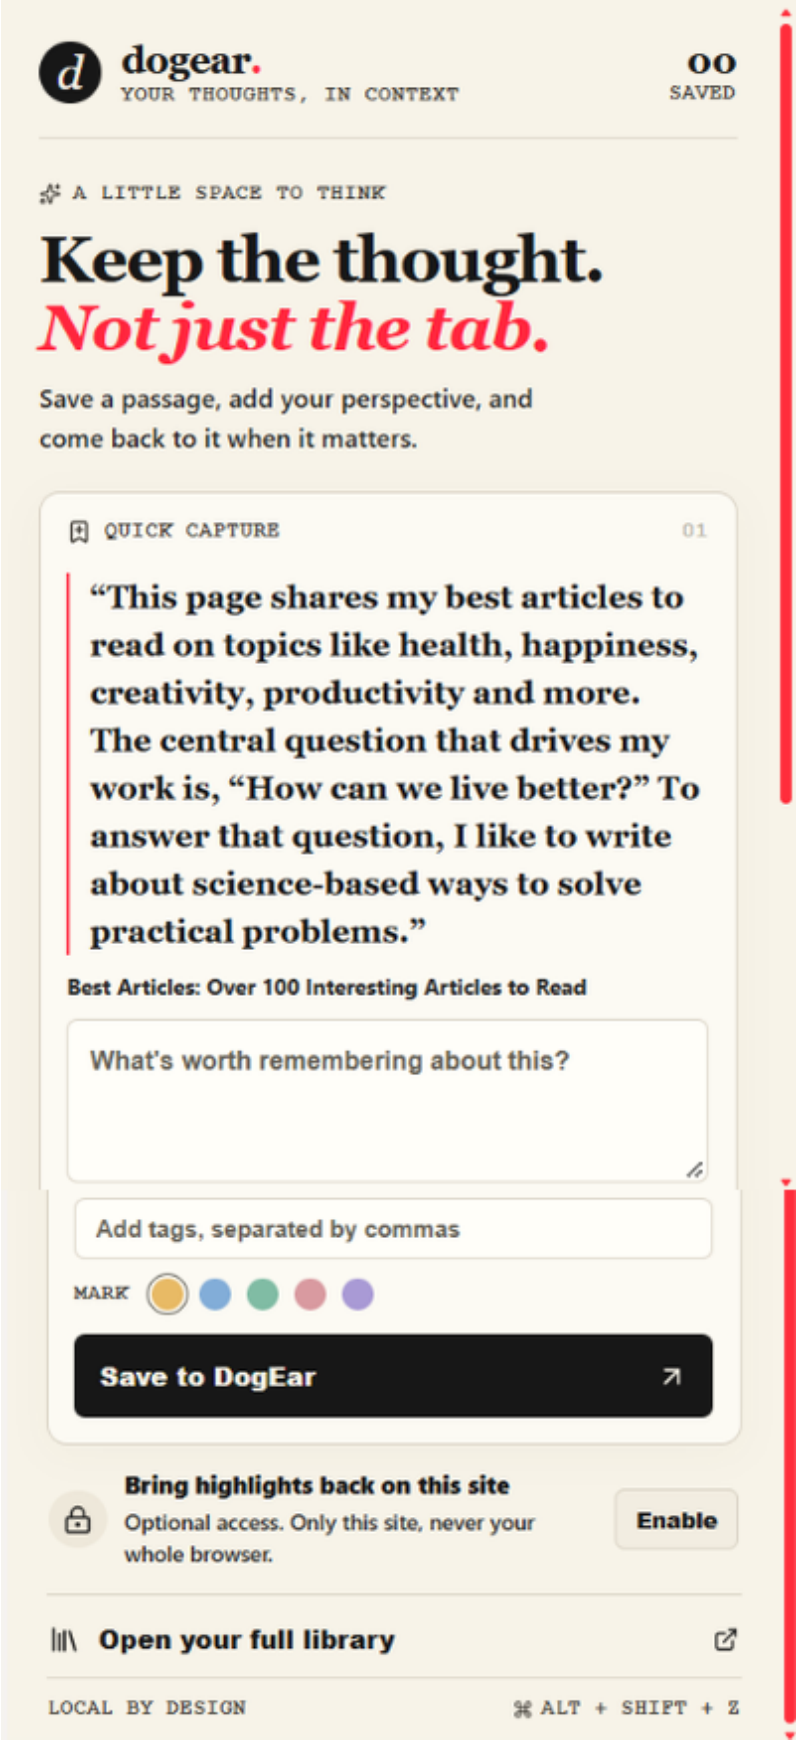

1. Select the passage you want to keep on a webpage.
2. Right-click the highlighted text and choose Save selection to DogEar.
3. The DogEar popup opens with the selection and page details ready to review.

The crimson outline marks the DogEar context-menu command.

02 · Review and save

Add a note explaining why the passage matters. Add tags separated by commas, choose a marker color if useful, then select Save to DogEar. Your annotation is stored locally in the browser.

The two supplied popup screenshots have been combined into one continuous image.

03 · Your full library

Choose Open your full library in the popup to browse and manage saved annotations in the workspace. The supplied images did not include a workspace screenshot, so this manual does not fabricate one.

Useful habits

• Keep captures focused on meaningful passages.
• Add a short note for your future self.
• Use tags to make related ideas easier to find.
• Enable optional site access only where you want DogEar to restore highlights.
• Use the library's backup/export features to keep an extra copy of your notes.

Keyboard shortcut

The current suggested native extension shortcut is Alt+Shift+Z. Browser extension commands do not support arbitrary sequential shortcuts such as Shift+Z, then X.

Opening the HTML guide

After extracting the release ZIP, double-click QUICK-START.html to open it in your default browser. Downloaded files cannot force a browser or operating system to open another file automatically.
